

County of Kent

Chestertown, Rock Hall, Betterton, Galena, Millington

Maryland's Upper Eastern Shore on the Chesapeake Bay

Have you ever visited a place where you immediately felt welcome and just knew that you would come back again? The County of Kent is just that place, and we're sure your groups will think so too. This scenic peninsula kisses the shorelines of the Chesapeake Bay and the historic Chester and Sassafras Rivers. Rewarded for its stewardship, Kent was bestowed with the honor of being part of Maryland's first National Scenic Byway, "Chesapeake Country," so getting here will be part of the experience. Low, rolling farmlands, dramatic sunsets, scenic beauty, nature and rich heritage of the County of Kent are within a two-hour drive from Philadelphia, Washington D.C. and Northern Virginia. Home to some of the most quaint and delightful towns in the USA, we invite your group to explore and experience Chestertown, Rock Hall, Galena, Betterton and Millington. Whether you are exploring historic architecture, visiting one of our museums, enjoying visual and performing arts, feasting on a burger or local seafood, shopping along red-brick sidewalks or playing on the water by taking a public sail, fishing, boating or kayaking, there is oodles to see and do in this charming destination to satisfy all.
